I used ChatGPT to generate a new image of cheese pizza because of my familiarity with using it, the fact that I already had a ChatGPT account to log into without hassle, and my satisfaction with its results from previous image generations. Its input was mostly expected, aside from the weird generation of circles on the pizzas that I believe is supposed to be the cheese bubbling or pooling, but it came out with an image that I could recognize as cheese pizza as it had done before in previous assignments.